

ABSTRACT

A bonding pad of a semiconductor device and a fabrication method thereof are disclosed. A semiconductor device having a pad formed by exposing a predetermined region of a metal line formed over a semiconductor substrate includes an alloy layer formed on the metal line exposed through the pad. The alloy layer is formed from a reaction between the metal line and a metal having a melting point less than or equal to 1000°C.